Jay Barkley, President and CEO

Jay Barkley founded American Environmental Group (AEG) in 2002. He identified a need for a full service environmental consulting company dedicated to improving air quality in residential and commercial buildings.

He assembled a team of highly credentialed, qualified and experienced experts unparalleled in the industry. The AEG team has over 35 years combined experience in health, safety and industrial hygiene. These credentials make AEG the premier environmental and industrial hygiene consulting firm on the west coast.

Mr. Barkley continues to augment his expertise through supplementary industry training and he currently holds the following certifications: Council Certified Indoor Environmentalist (CIE), Certified Level II Mold Inspector and Certified Environmental Inspector (CEI) and Council Certified Residential Mold Inspector (CRMI). He routinely conducts training classes for current and potential clients and assists all clients to better understand the risks associated with water intrusion, air quality and health and safety. Teaching awareness, finding solutions and mitigating costs is a critical success element in Mr. Barkley's training.

AEG is committed to “Providing Solutions for Healthier Air Quality” in residential and commercial buildings.

Mr. Barkley's vision for American Environmental Group is to be one of the most recognized environmental consulting companies in the nation. He believes he can achieve this goal with his team of highly qualified individuals and their uncompromising dedication to service excellence.
